The Kentucky Library association held the first session of its 25th annual meeting yesterday afternoon at 2:30 in the university library. At the evening session, the delegates were officially welcomed by Dr. McVey, and the celebration of the organization's 25th birthday was held.

The morning session was devoted to business left from last year's session. The reports of the officers were given, and committees appointed for the convention. At 3:30 the Book-Week program was held, with Miss Winifred Hutchings in charge. At the close of this session, the visitors were entertained at tea by the staff of the university library, in the staff rooms. President McVey opened the evening session with an address of welcome, which was responded to by Mrs. Mary T. Lelper. Dr. George K. Brady, of the English department of the university, delivered an address on "The Perfect Lady of Seventy-Five Years Ago," pointing out both the advantages and disadvantages of being a "perfect lady" in the late nineteenth century. "Twenty-five Years of the K. L. A." was the subject of an address by Miss Euphemia K. Corwin, a charter member of the organization, in which she gave something of the history of the organization and its achievements in the 25 years of its existence; and, especially, told of its work in establishing the Kentucky Library commission, which is doing increasingly valuable work in the state. Immediately after the adjournment of this session, one of the feature events of the convention was held. A huge birthday cake, bearing 25 candles, in honor of the silver anniversary of the association, was placed in the Browning room off the main lobby of the library, and was cut with great ceremony by the president, Miss Jennie O. Cochran, of Louisville. Around the cake stood the eight charter members who are still active. (Continued on Page Six)

Prof. W. S. Sutherland requests all those interested in intra-mural or inter-collegiate debating to attend the first meeting of the university debating group at 7:30 p. m., Monday, October 18, in Room 231, McVey hall. Previous experience in debating is not necessary. Arrangements will be made for tryouts, and plans for the year will be discussed.

The Blue and White orchestra will be back on the air. All union difficulties, which were directly the cause of their leaving it in the first place, have been ironed out, and the U. K. "Hot-cha" boys will begin tooting each Tuesday and Thursday. On Tuesday they will radio-cast from 12:15 - 12:30; on Thursday, from 12:30-12:45.

All Independents are urged to attend a political meeting of the Students Independent club which will be held next Wednesday night at 8 o'clock in the social room of Bradley hall. Henry Recano, chairman, will preside.

All persons wishing to do advertising work on the Guignol theater advertising staff are requested to report to Woodson Knight today, Friday, October 14, between 2 o'clock and 4 o'clock.

All students not as yet receiving proofs of their pictures to appear in the Kentuckian may get them at the Kentuckian office, Room 54, McVey hall between 3 and 5 p. m., according to John M. Kane, editor of the annual.

If proofs are not returned by Tuesday, October 18, members of the staff will select those which are considered the best pictures to run in the annual.

Those wishing to return proofs at other hours may leave them at the bookstore.

All members of the general staff of the Kentuckian are requested to report for work between 3 p. m. and 5 p. m. today at the office, Room 54, McVey hall.

According to Hugh Adeock, this little column is a very distinct success. After running his request for a songster in last week's Kernel, he asked him today what were the results. According to Hugh, there were exactly 16 girls in the university who had NOT applied for the job.

Where Is My Wandering
Boa, Tonight?Lost, Strayed, or Stolen:
Two Boa Constrictors.

Strange as it may seem, two snakes of the genus Boa, and the species Constrictor, have disappeared from their accustomed home in the Natural Science building. These reptiles were the property of the zoology department and were imported from Honduras at the cost of $25 per foot. Each boa averaged 10 feet in length. The first snake disappeared from the Science building, September 26; the second, October 10, from the lobby of the Kentucky theater. It had been placed there during the showing of Frank Buck's picture, "Bring 'Em Back Alive."

Anyone having information concerning the whereabouts of these two stray reptiles may notify the zoology department.

INITIATION NOV. 17

Omicron Delta Kappa, honorary campus leaders' fraternity, will pledge new members on October 27. George W. Stewart, president of Kentucky Nu chapter, announced today. The Circle will follow its annual fall custom of pledging by the tree in front of the Administration building.

Initiation and formal banquet will be held at the Phoenix hotel at 8:30 p. m., Thursday, November 17. The names of the speakers on the program have not been released.

At its last meeting, held at the Teacup inn, Tuesday, October 11, the fraternity decided to sponsor again the interfraternity sing, inaugurated last year. This sing will be held at Memorial hall Thursday, December 8, according to Mr. Stewart.

At the last pledging of the campus leaders group, 16 new men were added to the organization. Pledging was conducted at convocation and one associate member, Paul Morton, city manager of Lexington, was added to the group. Prof. R. D. McIntyre is faculty advisor of the university circle. Other faculty members include Pres. Frank L. McVey, Dean C. R. Melcher, Coach Bernie Shively, Morton Walker, and James Shropshire.

Pledging of undergraduates is based on a system in which each honor and office on the campus is evaluated at a certain number of points. The system used last year will be employed in selecting this year's campus leaders, George Stewart announced yesterday.

November Edition
Of Alumnus Issued

The November edition of the "Kentucky Alumnus," official magazine of the university graduate group is being mailed to subscribers today. The current issue of the magazine features the soon-to-be homecoming battle with Tulane and urges former university students to return for the fall reunion.

Campus News and other articles of interest to graduates complete the issue. The Alumnus is issued each month during the school year and is edited by Willie King and Betty Hulet. It is paid for by subscriptions from members of the association and is printed in The Kernel plant. During the past month 23 new members were added to the group, according to James Shropshire who is executive secretary of the organization.

Pajama Parade Will Feature
Pep Rally Tonight at Gym

A pajama parade will feature the pep meeting which will be held at 7:15 tonight at the Alumni gym on Euclid avenue. All university freshmen will be out in full bed-room regalia and the neophyte appearing in the most spectacular night attire will receive a prize. The judges of this unusual contest sponsored by SuKy will not have their identity revealed, but according to officials of the pep group they will be competent to choose the loudest pajamas in the parade.

Professor Sulzer's band will be there in all their accustomed color and the university's new pep song will be introduced in regal style according to members of Dixie's best.

The award for submitting the best yell has been postponed until a future date in order to receive contributions from students who were only recently notified of the contest.

Kernel Straw Vote
Polling Begins TodayBallots Will Be Found in Post Office Boxes; Votes To Be Placed in Ballot Boxes in Kernel
News Room

Hoover, Roosevelt, or Thomas? Ballots bearing the names of all three of these men will be found in each university post office box today, and each student and faculty member of the university may denote his choice for president by placing an "X" after his favorite's name.

Faculty members will receive their ballots in the mail, need not sign their ballots and may return them by mail. Each student ballot must be presented by the person by which it is signed, and no person may turn in a ballot for any other person. Each ballot will be numbered. Names signed to ballots will be held in strict confidence, the reason for the measure being to restrict the publication of ballots.

At the bottom of each ballot will be found a query as to whether or not the ballot is a registered voter. This is being done to determine the amount of the effective vote represented at the university.

A ballot box will be kept in the news room of The Kernel offices on the ground floor of McVey hall and two members of the staff will be there at all times between 8 a. m. today, and 5 p. m. Tuesday when the voting closes. The ballots will be counted by senior members of the staff, and local results will be released on October 25.

The Kernel polls will open to voters at 8 a. m. Friday. Other days for balloting are Saturday, Monday, and Tuesday. Polling hours will be from 8 a. m. to 12 m., and from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m. during the voting period, with the exception of Saturday. Polls will be open from 8 a. m. to 12 m. Saturday; they will not be open Saturday afternoon. The straw vote will close at 5 p. m. Tuesday, October 18.

The purpose of the plan is to stimulate interest in national elections, not as a promotion scheme or to satisfy the curiosity of any party. Three names will be on the ballot, and space will be found below the names in which may be written the names of any other candidate who has constituents on the campus.

This plan was evolved by The Daily Princetonian, student publication of Princeton University, and is being fostered by colleges and universities throughout the entire United States. Each school is conducting its own votes, the results of which will be sent to The Princetonian to be tabulated. The national vote will be released on October 28 through collaboration with that publication.

The university has found it necessary to deviate to some extent from the original plan of The Princetonian. That newspaper had decided that the names of the candidates of only the two major political parties be places on the ballot. Because of the widespread interest in the Socialist candidate, Norman Thomas, engendered by that party's organization on the campus, it (Continued on Page Six)

DANCING FROM 9 TO 12

The first school dance of the year will beckon eds and co-eds Saturday night when SuKy officially opens the U. K. social season, at the Alumni gymnasium. The Kentucky Masqueraders will play for the collegians from 9 until 12 o'clock.

This dance is held annually following the yearly battle of the Big Blue and the Generals from Lexington, Virginia. Large crowds are in attendance at this social function, and, according to SuKy members in charge of the affair, this year's turnout will be no exception to the general rule. Advance ticket sales indicate a capacity crowd.

According to the university social committee, the varsity football team will sponsor a dance following the Alabama game on October 29. The alumni association will hold its annual homecoming dance November 12 at the gymnasium following the grid game with the Green Wave of Tulane. With the exception of the Pan-Hellenic dance given immediately preceding the Christmas holidays, the homecoming dance is the classic of the fall social season.

WINS OUTBOARD RACES

Jack Smith, Sigma Chi pledge, and a freshman in the College of Arts and Sciences, won the Class C outboard motorboat races at Bay City, Michigan, Wednesday. Smith also came third in the Class B finals, and last year won the intercollegiate outboard racing championship at Cincinnati.

Twenty Programs Will Be Given During First and Second Semesters

The Sunday afternoon musicales which have grown in popularity with students and townsfolk during the past two years will be resumed on Sunday, November 6. The programs for the year have been arranged by a committee composed of Prof. R. D. McIntyre of the College of Commerce and Miss Mildred Lewis of the department of music. These musicales are open to the public and there is no admission charge.

In a letter to the student body President McVey explains the plan of these ventures and urges university students to take advantage of the musical opportunities provided by the university music committee. The letter follows:

The Sunday afternoon Vesper concerts held in Memorial hall at the university during the months from November 6 to April 9 are arranged for the students of the university and the public. The concerts are free to those who attend. The program is financed by the university music fund which consists of a small percentage of students' fees assigned to that purpose. Naturally there is a limit to what the committee can do in the arrangement of the programs and in the talent that can be employed. I have been much gratified by what the committee has done and what it expects to do this year with the money it has the program. I hope the public will appreciate the opportunity open to it without cost to hear good music. The committee.

Who Will Address Conference
Oct. 21, 22, 23

Planning Committee for the annual Kentucky Student Y. W. C. A. conference, which met Saturday, October 8, at the university, has made arrangements for several prominent speakers to address the conference, to be held October 21, 22, and 23, on the local campus. Among them will be the Rev. Richard Seebode, pastor of the Louisville Unitarian church; Dr. Frank L. McVey, president of the University of Kentucky; and the Rev. George Heaton, pastor of the Felix Memorial Baptist church of Lexington.

The program will open Friday evening with a dinner at Boyd hall residence hall for girls which will be headquarters for the conference, following which, there will be the opening meeting with the Reverend Seebode as the principal speaker. The Reverend Seebode is an authority on current social issues.

An informal meeting will follow dinner at Boyd hall Saturday at which time Miss Ina Ray and Miss Leila Meredith, members of the Jolly Girls' club of Louisville, will talk informally of their work in the industrial plants of that city.

Over WHAS

TO BE HEARD AT RALLY

"Kentucky, Fight! Fight! Fight!" a new song which was written by William H. Nicholls, will be introduced to the public at 1:15 this afternoon by the university band over station WHAS. The song will be presented to the students at the pep rally for the Washington and Lee game.

Mr. Nicholls is a student in the College of Engineering and a son of Professor Nicholls of the College of Agriculture. He is a pledge of Delta Tau Delta fraternity. The song was written last summer and Elmer G. Sulzer, director of the university band, arranged the music.

The program over WHAS today is the third in a series of broadcasts known as "Pep Rallies". It will include ten minutes of band and a five minute sport talk by Ralph Johnson, sport's editor of the Kernel.

Publication of Kat
Is Postponed Until
Alabama Contest

The Kampus Kat will not be issued at the Washington and Lee game. This was announced following a recent meeting of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity sponsoring the publication of the college comic magazine. Additional time is necessary to bring about the complete changes contemplated in the revision of the magazine, Marvin Wachs, editor, reported.

The tentative date set for the release of the issue is issue is October 29 at the Alabama game. The issue will be sold all over the Blue Grass, according to Johnny Craddock who is in active charge of publication. Advertisers have been responding to solicitation and every advance indication points to success it was said.

The issue will be known at the Halloween number and the cover will be colored in orange and black. Numerous cuts and engraving will be used throughout the magazine and the circulation is expected to exceed all previous issues. It will be the biggest magazine ever attempted by the publishers.

ART EDITORS SELECTED

Winners in the Kentuckian faculty popularity contest, announced Wednesday by John M. Kane, editor of the 1933 annual, are Prof. E. F. Farquhar, Dr. George K. Brady, Dr. Otto Koppius, and Prof. W. S. Webb, all of the College of Arts and Sciences. At that time also the announcement was made that John Craddock and William Frazer were appointed co-editors of art for the yearbook.

Selection of the most popular faculty members was made by members of the junior and senior classes who were photographed for the annual, each student being allowed to indicate his choice of three favorite professors. The ten most popular faculty members, exclusive of deans of colleges, will have their pictures placed in faculty section of the annual. This method of selection was used in order to give recognition to the faculty, as lack of necessary funds makes it impossible to include pictures of all faculty members. Deans of colleges and the president of the university were excluded from the contest because their pictures will appear.

The fifth highest in the Arts and Sciences college was Dr. Henri Beaumont. Others who were high in that college were Dr. Charles B. Barkenbus, Miss Marguerite McLaughlin, Prof. Enoch Grehan, Prof. Grant C. Knight, Dr. Amy Vandenberg, Capt. Clyde Grady, Dr. F. E. Tuttle, Dr. J. C. Jones, and D. C. Kemper.

In the College of Commerce, Lloyd Averitt was winner, with Prof. R. D. McIntyre a close second. Dr. W. W. Jennings and Prof. Rodman Sullivan were also high.

In the Education college, Dr. J. T. C. Noe was winner with a total of 18 votes.

In the Law school Dr. Forest R. Black was first with Prof. Roy Moreland as the second highest.

Students in the College of Engineering chose Prof. William A. "Daddy" Newman for first place and Prof. W. E. Freeman and Prof. J. R. Johnson for second and third places, respectively.

In the College of Agriculture, the students' choice was Prof. L. J. Horlacher, with Prof. A. J. Olney, second, and Prof. W. S. Anderson and Dr. Hugh B. Price as third and fourth, respectively.

According to the original plan, the pictures of the four faculty members receiving highest number of votes irrespective of college will be placed in the annual, and the other six faculty member selected will be the faculty members from each college having the highest number of votes in that college.

With the appointment of the two art editors, the list of members of the annual staff is nearing completion. The selection of art editors was made with the recommendation of Prof. E. W. Rannels on the basis of work submitted by each of the candidates for the position. Johnny Craddock is a senior in the College of Arts and Sciences, a member of Phi Kappa Tau, art editor for the Kernel, managing editor of the Kampus Kat, and a member of Sigma Delta Chi, national honorary and professional journalistic fraternity.

William Frazer is a graduate of the Arts and Sciences college, and is taking advanced work in the art department.

SLIGHT EDGE ON W. & L.Johnson Will Direct Blue
Forces on Stoll Field
Saturday

Facing their fourth game of the season tomorrow with the Washington and Lee Generals, the Wildcats, on the eve of the battle, were given a slight edge on their foes who are said to have lost the services of several regulars. The play will start at 2:30 p. m. on Stoll field.

The Wildcats will be somewhat crippled themselves as Ralph Kercheval, foremost kicker in the south, is suffering from a sprained ankle that will probably keep him on the sidelines during the entire game unless he is sorely needed. John Drury, who suffered another injury to his bad knee in the Tech game last week is definitely out of the game. But the 'Cats have ample reserves to replace these injured stars. Ellis Johnson's return to form has made Coach Gamage's heart glad. Johnson will do the punting and passing and will direct the play of the team.

All week the Wildcats turned in gratifying workouts on the offensive; that is, until Thursday when they were placed on the defensive against the enemy plays, and then did not look so hot. They could have been much better, but by the end of the workout they had improved wonderfully. On Monday and Tuesday the varsity, using their complete repertoire of plays, ran through the frosh with ease. Using double passes, spinners, forward passes and all kinds of deceptive plays the 'Cats rolled up nine or ten scores on each day.

Johnson's passes were straight and well placed, Bach and Darby reeled off long gains consistently and the ends blocked with such savagery that they scattered the frosh defense like leaves in a whirlwind.

Frank Seale, mammoth center, may not start the game due to slight injuries, but is sure to see considerable service. The rest of the lineup will probably be the same that began the Tech fray with the exception of Montgomery, who will supplant Drury at left tackle. The backfield will also be the same with the exception of Kercheval who will be supplanted by Johnson.

The Wildcats used to think a victory over the Generals was a cause for jubilation, but now, with four straight wins over their Virginia foes the Big Blue have almost ceased to worry over the DeHart men. This season the Virginians have the smallest squad in the history of modern football at the ancient institution, and the smallest in the entire Southern conference. They have lost five of their regulars from injuries in the last two games, although Henthorne, quarterback who was hurt last week in the Navy game is billed to start.

Production

"Once in a Lifetime," opening at the Guignol theater Monday, October 24, for a week's run, is rounding into form. During the day hammers pond and saws sing as stage manager G. L. Crutcher and his assistants construct artistic and realistic sets.

Clarence Moore and his electricians are busy wiring, getting the proper lighting effects in place. Decorators dabble with their brushes in adorning the canvas flats. Costume girls run in and out making and collecting appropriate and attractive costumes. Nightly the little theatre is alive with the players rehearsing far into the night.

The sequence of the acts and scenes is as follows: In act I, scene 1, the action takes place in a hotel bedroom; scene 2, in a pullman car, and scene 3, in the Peacock alley of the Hotel Stilton, Hollywood. Act II takes place in the reception room of the Glogauer motion picture studios. Act III, scene 1, is enacted on the lot of the Glogauer studios; scene 2, on the pullman car again, and scene 3, back in the reception room of the studios.

This humorous satire on the cinema world, containing seven scenes enacted on five sets, and with 36 players, is the largest production that Director Frank Fowler has undertaken in the history of the theater.

DANCE BEHAVIOR

SuKy, student pep organization, will sponsor the first dance of the school year, Saturday night in the Alumni gymnasium. If this dance is attended with good behavior, university authorities may advance the opening dates of next year's social calendar to an earlier time than in past years.

A student dance is a gala and happy affair. It can be made very unpleasant for those in attendance, especially the young women, if a group of men arrive under the influence of liquor. It is more or less of a black mark on the social traditions of the South and the ideals and principles of the University of Kentucky to have such a thing occur. It is to be regretted that the men attending the university cannot refrain from drinking at these social functions.

Smoking in the Alumni gymnasium is prohibited by the State Board of Fire Underwriters. Yet everyone smokes in the building. No matter how careful a person may be about extinguishing a cigarette, there is always danger of fire. Violation of the smoking prohibition works a hardship on everyone concerned with the university; for insurance companies have indicated that the premiums paid for protection of the building will be raised in proportion to the hazard involved unless smoking is actively prohibited.

Measures have been enacted by both the university authorities and the Men's Student council to control each of these problems. Nevertheless, either because the rules have not been drastic enough or because they have not been enforced, drinking and smoking have continued at dances held in the Alumni gymnasium.

Each year students ask the authorities to arrange the social calendar in such a manner as to provide for a maximum of entertainment. In turn officials have failed to comply with this request primarily because they have not been assured of student co-operation in the conduct of these dances. As soon as students provide the university with actual proof that they are willing to abide by its wishes in dance control, the authorities will allow more and earlier dances.

DEPRESSION AND THE LOAN FUND

The Student Loan fund, begun 11 years ago for the purpose of helping worthy university students defray college expenses, has not died a depression death. However, as a consequence of the depression, there has been a demand for aid exceeding five times that which the fund can give.

Despite the fact that previous borrowers, in many cases, have been unable to pay their debts or the interest on notes, students have drawn from the fund's resources during the present school term. The loans have been for the most part small, but of benefit to students who otherwise would have found it difficult to matriculate this year.

The fund is administered on the usual borrowing basis, but differs from other loan funds in that debts are those of honor rather than legal obligations. No surety is required other than the character of the applicants and the signature of a parent or guardian. The fund can continue to operate most successfully when those who have previously received aid realize that payment of their debts affords opportunities for new applicants to borrow in turn.

The Student Loan fund can be increased by private gifts only, as the university has no authority to divert funds from educational channels for this purpose. During the last year three outstanding gifts have been added to the fund: $100 from the Alumni association; $420.81, the proceeds of a basketball game between faculty teams, and $50, a gift of Scabbard and Blade.

The act of Scabbard and Blade is worthy of commendation. Other organizations on the campus might follow its example, giving opportunity to the youth of Kentucky to continue its education.

PILFERING

From various parts of the campus comes the odious report that some persons, permeated with the thievish instinct, are pilfering again. Sad to say, this is an authentic and not uncommon report.

Books disappear from the library; lockers in the gymnasium and annex are mysteriously entered and ransacked; professors miss notebooks and articles from their private desks. These sundry things reported missing are inanimate. It would have been impossible for them to have "walked away."

Indisputably such occurrences are wrong. One would think that petty thievery or stealing of any variation would be an absentee among the college group.

Of course, there are those who pick up a book with the intention of returning it in a few days. They obtain what they want and "forget" to take the book back. That could hardly be termed little less than stealing.

Do not pilfer; borrow. There is not a professor on the campus who would not gladly lend a student a book at any time. And there are few men and women at the university who would not lend another student some desired article.

It is a weighty adage that reads, "Honesty is the best policy."

Jest Among Us

When an instructor in the R.O.T. C. department told a freshman to fire at will, he replied that he didn't see Will, but he'd take a shot at Clancy.

Some people are so near-sighted that they can't even distinguish the characters in their own dreams.

In looking over the Southern conference standing the Jester smiles optimistically. Kentucky will be at the top of the conference for at least a couple weeks yet.

Famous last words—"We're outa' that book. The order ought to arrive by Saturday."

In a northern university, 8 o'clock classes were abandoned because the men came to them in tuxedos. The Jester wonders if that would work at U. of K. if students wore the clothes of the paper, ice, or milk man. The depression you know!

Famous Last Words—"And if I'm elected I promise—"

It seems to the Jester that all the good old butter and egg men of the West have become mutter and yegg men of the East.

Originality is running neck and neck with intelligence among the student body lately. "Pool Lab," "bed," breakfast, and "gossip" are some of the names students give to their vacant hours. Vacant?

Is the place going to the dogs? No, but it does seem that they average one to the classroom lately. No, freshmen, keep quiet—that's the instructor that stands before the class, and besides, dogs have four legs.

THEATER RUSHING
(To the Editor of The Kernel)
To the Students of the University:

Complaints have been made to me that students are rushing the theaters after pep meetings and after football games. This is against the rules of the university and is a violation of the rights of the owners of theater property. I am taking this opportunity to warn students that offenders of city ordinances and university rules are likely to get into serious difficulties leading to fines and possible punishment.

Aside from this possibility, it ought not to be necessary to call attention to the fact that such conduct is unsportsmanlike and rather mean and small at the expense of other people's business and property.

I am confident that I have heard the last of theater rushing.

LIBRARIAN'S WORK LAUDED

(To the Editor of The Kernel)

Dear Sir:
The meeting here of the library association convention has brought to my mind something which I have long desired to say, and which I think should be said without further delay. I write in the firm conviction that I am expressing not only my own opinion but that of a very large number of the student body.

The world in general is all too prone to wait until a person has been dead for fifty or a hundred years before it begins to pay tribute to the service of those who have toiled and suffered in its behalf. We of the university are no exception to this; there are on this campus a number of persons who have spent long years in faithful and valuable service to the university; yet because there was not a great deal of fanfare or what we would call "ballyhoo" connected with their positions, we tend gradually to take their services so for granted that we come to think that our football players and our beautiful buildings are the chief things which the university has to be proud of. This being so, it is not amiss, it seems to me, to stop for a moment now and then to pay tribute to some of these persons and learn to appreciate anew their service to the university.

Miss Margaret King, head librarian of the library of which we are becoming increasingly proud, has been with the university library since it was only a collection of books in the president's office. When it was moved to the building now occupied by the museum, and was called a library, she became its head librarian. As the demands on the library became larger and larger, and expansion was necessary but not possible because of the size of the building, she worked tirelessly and managed in spite of inadequate quarters, crowded conditions, and difficult student attitudes, to meet the needs of the university for a much longer period than seemed possible with such limited means and space. One often hears a student say as he gazes at the present imposing library building, "How on earth did the university get by so long with such a small library building as the old one?" It is Miss King's work, and her capable direction of her staff that largely made this possible.

At the dedication of the new library building much was said of the efforts of those who procured the money and other such requirements which made possible the building of a new library. All too little was said of the patient, arduous, routine work, the hours of planning, selecting, organizing, that lay behind the production of the collection which the speakers referred to so eloquently as the "real library." It is these things which fall to the lot of the head librarian and her assistants, and it is here that the greater part of the service lies.

Besides her actual service to the library, Miss King is herself a person whose acquaintance is to be highly valued. Courteous and kind always to the students who "pester" her continually with questions, requests, and applications for jobs; and to the hardly less annoying faculty, with their grievances and their demands for attention to their particular departments; she adds to the personnel of the library a personality which the university may be proud to call a part of itself.

I hereby, in behalf of the student body, pay tribute to Miss King and express in the best way possible to me our appreciation of her service.
(Signed:) A STUDENT.

PLAYMATES

There's no way to get around it, dear,
You can't run off and hide
Like you used to
When we were kids,
And cover your face
With your tiny hands,
From my timid kisses.

For now we've outgrown childish things,
And no longer play hide and seek,
Now, I hold you tight in my arms
And kiss your upturned lips,
For I love you, dear playmate.

Be careful—don't you deny
That you like this new game
Of love—I see it all
In your revealing azure eyes.
—D. B.

MELLOW ECHO
A sharp fierce, ugly blast
From an engine's shrieking whistle,
Breaks upon the sombre, summer night!
But across the hill,
And down the valley,
Comes sweeping back
A lovely echo:
In dimming spreading,
Softly, sweetly, into evening silence.
—T. SCOTT.

TOO GOOD TO BE BAD
Full many a thing that I find a bore
Would delight me less, if it pleased me more;
But some of the things I catch me enjoying Insult me so much that I find it annoying.

DOTES AND ANTI-DOTES

By LAWRENCE HERRON

Speaking casually of Stantoncephalodons, it pays to advertise. Mentioned Langdon Smith's lines, "When you were a tadpole and I was a fish..." in Tuesday's column. Received three offers of the poem, "Evolution," by 9 a. m.

But to get back to Stantoncephalodons. In my search for Smith's poem, I found a similar one by a local author. It was written by the late Dr. A. M. Miller, former head of the university geology department and one time acting dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. It was found among the personal notes of the late geologist and, unfinished, has not been published heretofore:

THE BALLAD OF A PREVIOUS INCARNATION
One day on the banks of the Laramie sea,
'Neath the beams of the Cretaceous sun,
There lumbered along in a curious way
A Stanton-ceph-al-i-odon.

His manner was meek as his size would permit,
But the way to excitement and fun
Was to tread on the seventeen feet of the tail
Of the Stanton-ceph-al-i-odon.

Today he was pleased with himself and the world,
Because he had breakfasted well
On a dainty tidbit of thirty-three tons
Of Ostrea glabra on shell.

And thus he bewiggled the plates on his back,
And vented a welcoming roar.
As he spied on the marge of a peat-laden swamp
A Knowlton-cory-phif-i-osaur.

The stranger in answer expressed a desire
The size of the other to learn,
But waited to gobble an acre or two
Of O-nac-lea sensible fern.

"All hail," quoth the Stanton-ceph-al-i-odon
To the Knowlton-cory-phif-i-osaur,
"I'm happy to meet so engaging a brute
On the sands of Ar-apa-hoe's shore."

Brace up my children and have no fear, for it's only our line coach with the funny headgear. When he played guard with the Mugwump Chiggers, he was so big there was room for only three players in the line. The other four were shifted to the backfield.

It was a lucky day for the Mugwump coach when he found this barefoot boy plowing corn in the dismal swamps of Illinois. After a desperate struggle, 17 men were finally successful in putting shoes on him. He was immediately carted away to begin a new career. He learned the art of bone crushing while working in a fertilizer factory. Mugwump fans will long remember this valiant hero of the gridiron.

On one occasion he intercepted a pass and ran 700 yards for a touchdown with 11 players and a water-boy hanging on his back. The field was only 100 yards long but he ran 600 yards in circles trying to remember his own goal.

We praise you for your brilliant record. Not solely because you carried on the name of dear old Mugwump, but because you were All-American.

BOOK REVIEWS

NO SNIVELLING PURPOSE
MAGNOLIA STREET, Louis Golding. (Reprint with slight alterations, first printed 1931) Farrar & Rhinehart, New York, 1932. $2.50.

The man in the novel must be "quick." And this means one thing, among a host of unknown meanings: it means he must have a quick relatedness to all the other things in the novel: snow, bed-bugs, sunshine, the phallus, trains, silk-hats, cats, sorrow, people, food, diptheria, fuchsias, stars, ideas, God, tooth-paste, lightning and toilet-paper.

—"The Novel," D. H. LAWRENCE.

After the impressionists, the expressionists, the realists, and the naturalists are through; when these and the (latest) Marxists have left us—we still have the novel. When all the exhibitionists and confusionists have pipped out in the slight explosion of their little force, thank God, we still have the novel. Of course the novel does not exist wholly apart from all these; when these are through, there shall be others just as good and just as bad. The novel carries them all and still remains the novel, in spite of even a very good piece of impressionism or Marxism—or a very bad piece (read a recent Russian novel). And the other way round. Marxism may carry the novel soon, as impressionism has already done, and realism. But the novel will go on even after Marxism has fallen limp and lame.

Just where this book comes in among the "isms" is of little concern. Better still, the reader won't care, for this is a real experience, reading Magnolia Street, getting acquainted with the Seipels, the Shulmans, the Winbergs, the Poyers on the odd-number side of the street, and with the Coopers, the Derricks, the Stanleys on the even-number side, loving them, getting to know them, hating some of them, sharing their lives, and being amused at them. For twenty years we live in Magnolia Street and even then know, as Max Emmanuel knew, that it was not twenty years: it was twenty minutes. It was twenty decades. Success? failure? there is some of each. And some of something greater, something of the less. Love, drink, robbery, murder, suicide, war, dirt, wealth, beauty, poverty—one street, twenty years, over two hundred people: a great story!

There is no "plot" really: "They did not do anything at all spectacular, the Carters and the Briggses, during the whole span of their history with which we are concerned. They were simple folk, like many millions of others, living in a poor street. Yet when the span of their history is considered as a single entity, something of grandeur emerges. And that must be, not because there was anything grand in any of them, but because they were human beings. The archangels, who are neither born, nor die, may be ready to admit more cordially than we human beings might, that any career subject to birth and growth, struggle and love, sickness and death, has a certain splendour." That is the admission and the story of Magnolia Street.

Yet with all this ponderous load to carry, this book is so constructed as to become an exquisite and an awful work of art. As in the weaving of a rug the patient Oriental twists and places the same strands continually until the pattern is finished, the work complete, so Golding has handled this story: we never forget, we never need more information, we are completely satisfied—except that the end comes.

The reunion at the end may seem an intervention of the deus ex machina, it may be one. But it needs no defense, however, easily we might remind that such things do occur. Anyhow, it is at this reunion that Max Emmanuel (Jew) and Enid Cooper (gentile) meet and know they love each other. But they don't know it until they are talking of Max's father's "love and universal brotherhood" ideas (another Israel Zangwill). "If all the races and peoples," (wonders Max) "are walking hand in hand along the Great West Road, where are the crowds to come from who are going to throw all those flowers?" Then:

From all Magnolia Street not a sound rose. Magnolia Street was turned to stone.

"We'll throw the flowers!" cried Enid Cooper and Max Emmanuel. Then they stopped. Their hands fell. They stared steadily and somewhat somberly into each other's eyes.

It is the end. But it not—the end!

CONEY ISLAND, LIMITED
MORE MERRY-GO-ROUND
Anonymous. Horace Liveright, New York, 1932. $2.50.

There is some evidence to substantiate the claim that Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War, who suffers at the portrayal of himself in this book, is responsible for the dismissal of one of the authors of More Merry-Go-Round from his position with the Baltimore Sun. The powers of censorship are not enough to protect the reputations of our governmental officials from a seemingly necessary (and in this case entertaining) alteration.

United States officials, foreign envoys, and society leaders of Washington, D. C. are here sharply criticized by the two knowing authors. A detailed account of the breach between Dollie Gann, the Vice-president's sister, and Alice Longworth; the orgies of diplomats, congressmen, and cabinet members; the secret of Andrew Mellon's resignation of his post with the treasury department; Hoover's social life; the disclosure of personal quarrels and bickerings among congressmen which with them supercede their sense of duty, honor, and dignity in their legislative functions, and which serve as the basis for much almost-criminal negligence—these things are here, neglected surely, frankly, and with some force.

The Supreme Court—the Jewish-Gentile feud, Mr. Hughes' affiliations as a former corporation lawyer (and the results of such), the traditional fights between the liberals and the conservatives (as Cardozo and McReynolds) — the Supreme Court, after this, will seem in a precarious lot; its supremacy stands alone, not enjoying the company of the other deific attributes. The strictly reportorial style, the rather gossipy tone, the seemingly undeniable veracity of the authors, the validity of their testimony make this an entertaining book, at least. One's own interest, and perhaps a personal conviction that something should be said at last, perhaps that something should be done, could make a valuable book. It tells us today what otherwise we probably would not really know for a few more years.

ROAMIN' THE RIALTO

"The Phantom President," political comedy coming Saturday to the Kentucky, marks the talkie debut of George M. Cohan, noted Broadway actor, author, producer, and composer. Serious politics get film "razz" in this famous song-and-dance man's campaign for the presidency, with Jimmy Durante, of "schoozle" fame, as his running mate, whil Claudette Colbert makes a graceful pass at the role of "First Lady of the Land."

The dashing, swashbuckling, super-energetic Doug who won screen popularity with his daring acrobatics returns as Mr. Fairbanks lays aside the suavity of the current mode to play "Mr. Robinson Crusoe," starting Sunday at the Ben Ali. Adventure and high romance are blended to make this racy modern version of the experiences of the famous castaway, based on the Defoe story. Maria Alba is a complication the original Crusoe didn't have to deal with.

A little more than a decade ago Richard Barthelmess achieved a place in the Cinema Hall of Fame with "Tol'able David," voted the best motion picture of 1921. In "The Cabin in the Cotton," the presentation Saturday at the Strand. He gives a performance reminiscent of the boy who touched the hearts of film fans the world around. The picture was considered worthy of three stars by the dramatic critic of "Liberty."

How many of Tuesday's questions could you answer? In case there were some about which you were in doubt, we will tell you the correct answers.

Douglas Fairbanks made that wager in "Mr. Robinson Crusoe." Anna Sten has been imported from the Soviet Russian stage to play opposite Ronald Colman in his next picture.

While Billie Burke was making "A Bill of Divorcement" news came of the death of her husband, Florenz Ziegfeld.

Director Charles Brabin gave up trying to tell the Barrymores how to act in "Rasputin" before he had a nervous break-down with complications. Richard Boleslavsky is the bold lad who is trying to take his place.

Irene Dunn and Richard Dix will again be co-starred in "The Ace." At last the difficulty of finding a picture suitable for both has been overcome.

CARD CATALOGUE REVEALS STUDENT IS 1921 YEARS OLD

By JUDY CHADWICK

A survey of the card catalogue in the Kernel office reveals that the university is honored this year with the attendance of three sages, all of whom are almost 2,000 years old. Thomas Theodore Childers who has the honor of being the oldest man in the university was 1921 years old on his last birthday. He was born July 9 in the year 11. A close competitor for his title is J. Frank Adams who was 1920 on September 23, while James B. Croft comes in third at the feeble age of 1916—he was born February 1, year 14.

A number of students expect to celebrate their nativity this year and, no doubt, are awaiting the event with great anticipation. James C. Dowling will be born November 18, 1932—Isn't it a shame he won't be able to vote? Feldon Dunn will be able to get around to it, but he is determined to see it through this year.

Among the child prodigies attending the university are Mary Hawkins Dantzler who was born January 24, 1932 and Frances Dunlay whose birth date is February 25, 1932. They are indeed a credit to their parents...one wonders where they will be a year from now if they continue with their amazing progress.

Jack B. Jean has not yet been born and has no idea when he is actually coming into existence. Of course, he may have the PI Kaps on the look out for it, but the suspense must be terrible. Eva Faulconer Edmonds is in a much worse plight. Poor Eva not only has never been born, but she has no parents or nationality—not even a phone number! Florence Mary Kelly and Maybelle Kremer are completely in the dark about their birth dates...they are waiting for them patiently.

The notorious John Doe, who hails from West Virginia by the way, has not been born either. Sympathy should be extended to him... imagine trying to live up to the character of "John Doe" in person. Abie Marie Koonz will be born March 29. She has not set the year, but no doubt, we can expect it any year now.

To George Milton Yates belongs the title of "The Man Without a Country"—he meely left the nationality line blank. It was a relief to read farther down that he was an S. A. E. It would have been too much had he been a man with out a fraternity! Wardell Walther merely designated his nationality as "a" so it can be a "anything" you want to call him.

Ralph Conley Salyer has a very erudite family, undoubtedly a long line of college professors; to be explicit the daily paper read by the Salyers is "Bunk". Charles Ward's answer to "Home paper (received in your home)" was X. Does he mean the unknown quantity? Jonie Wall is still more perplexed; she merely put a "2" in the blank space and Leon Younger merely says "yes"—probably meaning a non-partisan paper agreeing with the side that pays the most.

Frances—the little Alpha Xi Delta from Paris, Ky., either ran out of ink or forgot her last name in that great card shuffle.

Daniel Durbin states that his street number is American. Isn't he lucky it wasn't Chinese on account of only his laundry man could have read it.

ENGLISH CLUB WILL MEET
The English club will meet at 4 p. m. Tuesday in Room 211 of McVey hall. This is the first meeting of the year, and officers for the year will be elected. There will be an impromptu program. All English majors and students interested in English are urged to come.

PAN-HELLENIC BANQUET

The date of the annual Pan-Hellenic banquet, to which all sorority women, actives and pledges, are invited, will be set at the next Pan-Hellenic meeting which will be held at the end of the week, according to an announcement made by Dorothy McGown, president of the organization.

SCHOLARSHIP IS GRANTED

George Harris, the high point man on the university livestock judging team last year, is now connected with the Department of Agriculture in Washington. He will further continue his studies next year at some college of his own choosing on a scholarship, granted to him because of his proficiency in agricultural work.

Chi Delta Phi, national fraternity for women writers, will meet today, for the election of members. Evelyn Freyman will preside at the meeting, which will be held at the home of one of the members. The group meets twice a month, at which time work of members is read. Professor Dantzler is faculty advisor.

GENERALS PRESENT REVAMPED LINE-UP

Five Regulars Are On Injured List as W. & L. Meet 'Cats

Special to THE KENTUCKY KERNEL.

By WILLIAM S. BARKER
Sports Editor, The Ring-Tum Phi
Lexington, Va., Oct. 14.—With five regulars on the injured list, the battered, but still fighting Generals of Washington and Lee, will present a much revamped lineup against the University of Kentucky eleven at Lexington, Ky., Saturday.

Washington and Lee has the smallest squad in the Southern Conference, and the loss of three veteran linemen and two sophomore stars has made havoc with Coach Jimmie DeHart's plans for a successful season. The first blow fate dealt the group of 24 General gridiron trodders was the injuries to Tom Boland, guard, and "Toots" Ruffner, center, in the Davidson game, the second of the season. Boland, one of the mainstays of last year's state championship aggregation, suffered a broken leg, and will be out for the remainder of the season. Ruffner, inexperienced but more than capable, pulled a knee ligament and will not see service for another month.

The Navy game last week put two more Generals in the hospital and a third on the sidelines. Jay Henthorne, sophomore fullback, about whom most of the Washington and Lee plays were built, and Bob Morris, smashing veteran tackle, are both out of the game indefinitely with serious leg injuries. Bud Hanley, ranged end, received a broken hand, but he has been running signals in uniform in practice sessions and there is a possibility that he may get into the fray Saturday.

In an effort to bolster his depleted squad, Coach DeHart has recruited several members of last year's squad, who did not report for practice at the start of the season, and one or two of these men will more than likely appear in the General's lineup tomorrow. Big Emil Stevens, who was slated for a berth on last year's varsity until he was injured before the opening game, is the most prominent of these new aspirants.

With Henthorne out, Joe Sawyers, flashy speed demon, who scored the winning touch downs against V. P. I. and Princeton last year, and Bill Seaton, fleet sophomore, emulator of Sawyers' this season, will be depended upon to do most of the ball carrying. Sam Mattox, another of the long line of Washington and Lee's famous football Mattoxes, showed well as a substitute for Henthorne in the Navy game and is almost certain to see action tomorrow. Eddie Bacon, a converted end, playing his third year of varsity football, probably will start in the blocking back position. Another senior, Nace Collins, should also be in the lineup.

On the line will be the two remaining veterans, Amos Bolen, guard, and Scotty Mosovich, all-state end last season and Bill Dyer, sophomore regular, at tackle. Others appearing on the forward wall will be Grove, a reserve last year, or Glynn, a sophomore, at center; Martin, a member of last year's freshman team, or Wertz, another experienced reserve, at guard, and Charlie Smith, who has been giving Hanley and Mosovich a great fight, at end.

The General's record to date is anything but impressive. After losing, 18-0, to the strong George Washington university team from Washington, D. C., they allowed the fast stepping Davidson Wildcats to slip over a single touchdown for a 6-0 victory. A Navy team, much improved after their loss to William and Mary, took the Generals into camp 33-0 last Saturday. Washington and Lee came back to win the Virginia state championship and defeat Princeton in their only inter-sectional game after a disastrous start last season and they are out to repeat the upsetting procedure again this year. They hope to get started tomorrow.

Briefs From Enemy Camps

By EDWARD WATTS

Auburn's mighty Plainsmen clearly outplayed Duke's Blue Devils except in the third quarter last Saturday and swept aside the Wade coached eleven by a score of 18 to 7. Captain Jimmy Hitchcock and "Phantom" Casey Kimbrell led the Auburn attack. Kimbrell is a 10-second track man and has scored 58 points in three games this season.

Tulane Wants Felts Back

Tulane officials are making every effort to bring about the re-instatement of Nollie "Papa" Felts, captain and star fullback of the Green Wave. Felts was ruled ineligible on the grounds of baseball professionalism and has viewed the two Tulane games from the bench. These charges were investigated two years ago and Felts was given a clean slate. Neither Tulane nor Southern conference officials have made known the persons pressing the charge.

W. & L. Weak

Kentucky's next opponent, the Washington and Lee Generals, were defeated in their last game by the United States Naval Academy. The score was 33 to 0. The Navy was an improved team, but Washington and Lee put up a weak battle.

Cain Scores Four Times

John "Hurricane" Cain scored four touchdowns, one in each period, enabling Alabama to defeat George Washington University by a score of 28 to 6. Holley added the point after each touchdown. The game was hard-fought all the way.

Tulane Scores Quickly

Scoring four touchdowns in less than twelve minutes, Tulane defeated Georgia 34 to 25. Only two of those scores counted because the Green team was offside. Tulane led 34 to 6 when the regulars were withdrawn. Zimmerman and Payne are the backfield now that Felts is out. Lefty Haynes, the great pass receiver of last year has gone, and Francis Payne, a halfback, has become the target for the unerring Don Zimmerman. Payne received a fractured collar bone in the Georgia game. It is not known how long he will be out.

Vols Played Listlessly

Tennessee regulars and reserves played listless football in defeating the University of North Carolina 20 to 7. A 54-yard run by Peathers and a Carolina passing attack in the last quarter were the only thrills. Apparently the Vols were holding back for their crucial test against Alabama this week at Birmingham.

'CATS HAVE WON FOUR STRAIGHT FROM GENERALS

First Game Played Back in 1899, and Resulted in 0-0 Tie

GAMES ARE COLORFUL

By A. STANLEY TRICKETT

Saturday Kentucky's Southern Conference leading Wildcat football team will meet an old traditional foe in the Washington and Lee Generals. The Generals are not expected to give the Gamagrass men any serious opposition and the final gun should see the 'Cats still astride the top rung of the Southern football ladder.

The colorful General-Wildcat series started way back in the nineteenth century when football was a real he-man game. The players in that dark age, better known as the gay nineties, were usually belted and flogged by the referees. The game was so rough that it was probably safe to present football stars to the safety of the stands. Since the first W. & L.-Kentucky battle in 1899 the games between the two schools have been packed with thrills and color like no other series that the 'Cats play, always excepting the Tennessee battles.

The first game between these two rivals was played November 21, 1899 and resulted in a 0-0 tie. The game was not satisfying to the boys so they arranged another contest for the next day—what if modern players did tricks like that? In the second battle, the 'Cats proved slightly superior and finished the game on the long side of a 0-0 score. The next renewal of the series came in 1923 and again the boys battled, in what was a memorable contest, to a tie. This time—perhaps because modern grid heroes are not so stalwart as those of yore—they let the score stand at 6-6.

Starting in 1924 the Generals started a four game winning streak. They sank the 1924 version of Wildcat football by 16-7 count, but only after a battle that thrilled the stands from whistle to gun. In 1925 the Virginia lads had little trouble sinking the Kentucky craft to the tune of 25-0.

The game of 1926 was probably the most thrilling of all the eleven battles between the rival grid machines. Washington and Lee had tied the mighty Princeton team and held Jack Slagle to a standstill. By the time they played the Big Blue they were being called one of the best teams in the country, but an inferior 'Cat eleven rose to new heights to lose by a single point 14-13.

The year 1927 saw the last W. & L. victory, this time they repeated the performance of 1925 and sent the Bluegrass boys down by the count of 25-0. In 1928 Clare Dees led his grid warriors to a triumph over the Generals that started a string of victories yet unbroken. The 1928 victory was by the score of 6-0. The big guns in the Kentucky attack were "Montana Bull" Brown who was all over the field getting nearly 90 percent of all the tackles, and Pete Drury who saved the game on the last play when he intercepted a W. & L. pass, intended for the great Leigh Williams.

Ed Covington skipped the Wildcat craft to a 20-6 victory in 1929. It was only another football game this time and it marked the event of the first W. & L. team of an inferior type. In 1930 the two teams put on one of the best shows that Stoll field frequenters have watched in years. Kentucky jumped away to a 14-0 lead in the first half, only to see (Continued on Page Five)

SEEN FROM THE PRESS BOX

There is little chance for a columnist to add much to what has already been said in the several good stories appearing on these pages. For instance, William S. Barker, sports editor of the Ring-Tum Phi of Washington and Lee, has written a fine story from their side of the fence. Delmar Adams, sports writer par nonchalance, has the usual Kentucky hockey on the front page.

Stanley Trickett has delved into the past and produced some facts and some fancy. With that the boys have just about covered Washington and Lee from here to there. Read their stuff, and know what it is all about when the game is being played.

Perhaps the only thing this column can add to this paper is a guess at the score. How does 34-0 sound? So far this season, the predictions Press Box has made have been within three points of correct. Before going further, the Press Box wishes to commend Sukey for several improvements this year over last.

First, we have noticed that the flags flying over Stoll field on football days remind us of just what a football field ought to look like on a football day. If they want to improve and add to the good they have already done, let them add more flags to the array—one for every one of the posts!

Second, their salesmen and women are not in the public eye, this is last. They are sitting down during the play, for which several thousand people ought to be grateful. And the pop bottles that were a potential threat are no longer scattered throughout the stadium. Those slight courtesies will cost them a few dollars, but what the heck—they claim they were losing money any way. Their president is an ingenious lad and will devise some other way of making money.

BOOK EXHIBIT AT LIBRARY

Folk Lore, Fairy Tales, Age Old Novels, and a Great Number of Other Indispensable Volumes Are in the Collection

What kind of stories do Japanese mothers tell their children? What were the "rhymes to be traded for bread?" What 20 books would you choose first in starting a school-room library? How do people in remote parts of the state gain access to good books? How can a small library procure for the use of its readers collections of books which it can not afford to buy? Where could you obtain a collection of condensed general discussions on various phases of life today such as science, art, and branches of literature?

For the answers to questions one and two, go to the basement of the university library and gaze earnestly in the glass display cases in the lobby there. For the others, mount the stairs to the third floor, go down the corridor and turn to your left, entering at length the Library Science classroom. A little judicious observation of the various articles found therein will satisfactorily answer the questions raised above.

The reason for this opportunity to satisfy that curiosity which is ever with the student is the meeting here this week-end of the Kentucky Library association. For the benefit of the delegates who are coming from libraries and schools in all parts of the state, a number of exhibits have been arranged on various subjects of general interest to librarians and teachers. They are, of course, also open to the student body of the university.

In the basement lobby is an exhibit of Japanese literature and folk-lore, loaned to the library from the collection of Miss Grace Smith, of Lexington, who spent her childhood in Japan. The exhibit includes tiny books of fairy tales, illustrated with the characteristic gorgeousness of Japanese drawings. There are also examples of painted fabrics and a few curios of various kinds. The exhibit is completed with books on Japan and its people.

Opposite the Japanese exhibit is the collection of books, manuscripts and autographed material by Vachel Lindsay, loaned to the library by Eudora Lindsay South, his niece. Here also appear copies of some of his "rhymes to be traded for bread" which his biographers say he actually did trade for bread in some instances. An excellent photograph of the poet is also included in the exhibit.

In the Library Science study on the third floor are the book exhibits. Here is the model one-room school library exhibit, with copies of books that should be chosen first of all as a nucleus for a school collection. Such indispensables as "Little Women," "Aesop's Fables," "Arabian Nights," "Jungle Book," "Andersen's Fairy Tales," "Treasure Island," "Robinson Crusoe," "Tom Sawyer," and "Lamb's Tales from Shakespeare," are there, besides more modern ones which are rapidly becoming children's classics.

The same room contains the exhibit called the "The World We Live In." It contains 100 books, all of which deal with some state or country presented in an attractive and popular form. Each of the 48 states is represented by a book. The actual copies of these books are included in the exhibit.

In the corner of the room is the Kentucky Library Commission Book Box, in which it sends out books to various libraries through the state, thus affording them access to books that they might not be able to afford otherwise. The box is in the form of a small bookshelf, and may be opened and set up in the library just as it comes, then repacked with ease when the time comes for its return.

A small model of a book-truck, the vehicle which is the instrument of the traveling library movement, and which makes possible the distribution of books to parts of the state remote from library service, is there to represent that phase of the state library work.

Besides these, there is the "Reading With a Purpose" exhibit, a series of small pamphlets, each of which deals concisely but comprehensively with such subjects as science, art, branches of literature, etc. The American Library association exhibit of scrapbooks, reading lists, and books; and book exhibits from the Wilderness bookshop in Louisville, and Wrenn & King, Lexington.

SEEN FROM PRESS BOX

seen John Stoll, who in turn advised the council to reconsider their first refusal. He said he would stand back of the university.

The final objection, now in the way, is that the plan would take all afternoon to put the bleachers up. Classes could be shifted to the gym annex. Basketball practice would not be interfered with for the workmen would not be on the basketball floor, until after the practice was over. He would use the university men who are accustomed to handling the bleachers; he would pay them.

If at anytime the crowds became objectionable, or the proposition in any way did not suit, the meetings could be stopped. The athletic council could supervise the whole business. In other words, everything must be above the board or Bill Emerick will gladly quit.

We wonder how the Athletic council can turn down any proposition that will net them $50.

'CATS HAVE WON FOUR STRAIGHT

an inspired General team, led by a fiery boy named Maddox, tied the score in the third period. But as the shadows flitted down the final frame, too much Spicer and Kelly were turned loose and Kentucky turned the nip and tuck battle into a rout.

Last year Washington and Lee could offer nothing to stop the 'Cats. The final score was 45-0. The big man in the Kentucky lineup was the mighty Kelly. It was in this game that "Shipwreck" made what many consider his greatest run, snatching a W. & L. pass on the own three-yard stripe he wove, spun, reversed, and counter reversed, 97 yards for a marker. From then on the game was all Kentucky and Kelly.

Saturday the Gamaeemen should experience little trouble in their attempt to make it five straight over the Generals. The Virginia lads have played three games this year, losing all and as yet not scoring a point. Last Saturday a Kentucky boy, Borries of Louisville, led the Midshipmen of Navy to a 33-0 win over the Shenandoah valley aggregation. Even little Davidson has a victory over the W. & L. machine this year.

Regardless of the strength of the two elevens, Saturday's contest will sparkle with color and thrills. Washington and Lee will shoot the works against the Big Blue and for 60 minutes Kentucky will have a real, game, scrappy eleven to face.

Wildcats Will Be Too Strong for the Washington & Lee Generals. Two Crucial Southern Conference Games To Be Played

By LENREK

The Washington and Lee Generals will find the Wildcats mighty hard to stop after three conference victories in a row—over V. M. I. Seawane and Georgia Tech. This will be the first conference game for the Generals. So far they have lost three in a row to non-conference foes—George Washington University, Davidson and Navy. We predict the Wildcats to win by four touchdowns if the first team is used the entire game.

The Southern Conference crown will be closer to its victory a week hence after two big battles have brought the four touted contenders to grips. Alabama plays Tennessee at Birmingham and Tulane tackles Vanderbilt at New Orleans and unless there is a tie, the title hopes of two of these must fall. Alabama with a great team of veterans employing the Notre Dame system, as taught by Frank Thomas, has proven herself a veritable cyclone in their early games, and is pointing for the Vols. Tennessee will enter the game as the underdog, but the spirit and fight of the Volunteers is a long way toward victory. Captain Johnny Cain, of Alabama, one of the greatest fullbacks the South has seen, heads an aggregation of a fighting team. In the Vols' backfield, we will find Peathers, one of the best runners in the South. Taking every thing into consideration it looks as though Tennessee will have to go down in defeat.

Tulane seems to be a favorite over the Vanderbilt Commodores. The Green Wave won from the Commodores in 1931 by a score of 19-0. With Don Zimmerman, all-southern fullback, in the Green Wave's backfield and with a line that averages almost 200 pounds to a man, Vanderbilt's chances look mighty bad. Tulane opened its conference rating Saturday with a victory over the powerful Georgia Bulldogs by a score of 34 to 25. This marked the second defeat this season for the Bulldogs having lost to V. P. I. by a score of 7 to 6. Tulane has played one other game besides the Georgia tussle. Winning from the Texas A. & M. school by a score of 26 to 14.

The Auburn Plainsmen seem to be the "dark horse" in this Southern conference race. Duke fell to the Plainsmen by 18 to 7 last Saturday. Auburn plays the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets this Saturday and should win by two touchdowns. The Duke aggregation should get together and win from Maryland. The Georgia-North Carolina game will be a better game than the fans think, those Tarheels are out for a victory. L. S. U. and Centenary will have little trouble with the Mississippi members. One of the most important non-conference games will be the Florida-Citadel tussle. Florida is doped to win but we fear this Citadel team after winning from the V. M. I. Squadron, North Carolina State, Seawane, South Carolina and V. P. I. should come through with a victory. Columbia will take Virginia without any trouble and Davidson should win from V. M. I.

In the intersectional games we have Notre Dame expected little more than a workout against Drake. In the east, we have the Pittsburgh Panthers engaging battle with the Army Cadets at West Point. Pitt walloped the Cadets, 26 to 0, last year. It looks like the Panthers will come through with another victory. Nebraska, the Big Six Champion will have plenty of trouble with Minnesota. Harvard, Southern California, Stanford, and Ohio should come through with flying colors.

U. K. Tabs Show Thirty-two States Are Represented

The geographical distribution of students attending the university, the first semester 1932-33, shows that 116 counties from Kentucky, 32 other states and the District of Columbia, and four foreign countries are represented.

This year students from 32 other states, and the District of Columbia enrolled, as against 31 states and the District of Columbia last year; Idaho, Louisiana, and North Dakota had representation this year but not last, while Kansas and Nebraska had students here last year, but not this. Of the states having a representation both years, Georgia, Minnesota, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, and Tennessee showed gains, the enrollment from Iowa, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New Mexico, and Rhode Island was stationery, and the other states sent less than in the preceding year. The total out-of-state enrollment this year was 277 compared with 339 a year ago.

Last year one student each attended the university from Hawaii, Canal Zone, and China. This year we have five foreigners two from the Canal Zone, and one each from Canada, China, and Mexico.

All counties were represented except Butler, McCreary, Owsley, and Spencer. Last year the only county with no representation was Butler. The largest number of students represented from the different counties were Bourbon county, 67; Campbell county, 40; Clarke county, 49; Fayette county, 845; Franklin county, 53; Jefferson county, 136; Jessamine county, 56; Kenton county, 45; Scott county, 29; Woodford county 41.

The five states having the highest enrollment at the university are New York, 46; Illinois, 29; Ohio, 25; Indiana, 21, and West Virginia, 20.

Freshman Caps Must Be Purchased Before November 1

Freshmen caps will be available Monday, October 23, at Thorpe's on East Main street, according to an announcement made yesterday by John Ewing, president of the Student council. All freshmen boys will be required to wear the caps until the beginning of the second semester.

All freshmen must purchase tickets at the Business office of the university which when presented at Thorpe's will admit the bearer to one tiny white and blue cap.

First year men who have not purchased freshmen caps within a week after they are put out for sale will be summoned to appear before the council and are likely to have their social privileges revoked.

Having Oil Trouble Today, Mister?
Evanston, Ill., Oct. 6—Patrolman Henry Groh, the eminent inventor of the Evanson police force, has perfected a device which absolutely, utterly and completely ends all automobile oil troubles.

He installed the gadget for a demonstration upon Police-man Sam Bell's car. Then Patrolman-inventor Groh started the engine.

The resultant explosion was magnificent. Policeman Bell will have no further oil trouble with his car. It is in small pieces. Patrolman Groh, with 14 stitches in his brow, plans to use his inventive genius on other, greater triumphs—as soon as he recovers.

CHEMICAL GROUP HEARS BEDFORD

Lexington American Chemical Society Holds Monthly Meeting Tuesday in Kastle Hall

The Lexington American Chemical society of the 161st regional section held its monthly meeting last Tuesday in Kastle hall and Dr. M. Hume Bedford, professor of physical chemistry at the university was the principal speaker.

Dr. Bedford gave impressions of the national meeting of the American Chemical society held at Denver last August. He discussed the division of physical and organic chemistry and the work of Dr. Wendell M. Latimer of the University of California upon "The Use of Ionic Enterprises in the Determination of the Electrode Potentials of Metals."

Dr. U. F. Payne, head of the department of science of Transylvania College, gave a report of a regional meeting which the American Chemical society held last week at the Engineers' club in Dayton, Ohio. He described the places of interest which the delegates visited, particularly the inspection of Wright field, the city sewage disposal plant and the Thomas and Hochwalt laboratory.

Johnson and Bach To Be in Lineup

It is the chances for a W. & L. victory seems slim indeed. Sawyer and Bacon at the halves are flashy ball carriers, and caused havoc last year, but have not had much chance to show their wares this season.

The Wildcats will be heavier than their foes, and have more experienced men in the battle array than the Generals. The Wildcats picked up considerably after their Tech Jackets. They lead the Conference with three wins against no setbacks and barring defeat tomorrow will still be in the van.

Coach Gamage was displeased with the workouts on Wednesday and Thursday and was doubtful of the beginning lineup and said that he would not know before game time. Darnaby and Cassidy are staging a battle for the blocking back post. Cassidy, due to his superior experience, will probably get the call. Bach, the successor to Kelly as the Wildcat speed demon will try to get his third touchdown from an enemy punt tomorrow. At the other half will be Darrell Darby, Jack-of-all-trades in the football game and good at all. His work on pass defense is great and no enemy passes are likely to slip by this little back.

Rupert and Kreuter, the best ends to represent a Kentucky team in several years will start on the flanks with Duff ready for action at any time. If the game goes right for the Big Blue Coach Gamage will probably insert many reserves who need seasoning for the harder battles yet to come.

The probable lineups:
Kentucky Pos. W. & L.
Rupert LE Mosovich
Montgomery LT Dyer
Davidson LG Ruffner
Seale C Grove
Gibson RG Bolen
Skinner RT Morris
Kreuter RE Hanley
Johnson QB Henthorne
Darby HB Bacon

Sunday Musicales Open November 6

mittes should be encouraged by large attendance and by helpful comment. Some of the programs are contributed to the cause of music, and to the artists who have given so generously of their talent many thanks are due.

The program of this season presents many delightful artists who will give much joy to those who hear them.

(Signed:) FRANK L. McVEY,
President of the university.

The programs for the coming season are as follows:

November 6—Recital by Mary Ann Kaufman Brown, soprano, of Cincinnati

November 13—Concert presented by Frances Arnold South, soprano; Carolina Pike, pianist; Carl Lampert, violinist and Abner Kelley, organist

November 20—Concert by the university Philharmonic orchestra.

November 27—Recital by the Tolleson Trio (violin, cello and piano) of New York city.

December 4—Recital by Parvin Titus, organist, of Cincinnati.

December 11—Y.W.C.A. and Y.M.C.A. Christmas program.

January 8—Recital by Daniel Eri-court, pianist, of Cincinnati.

January 15—Joint Recital by Mrs. W. H. Hansen, soprano and Mr. H. O. Kemp, tenor, of Lexington.

January 22—Concert by the university Philharmonic orchestra.

January 29—Recital by V. Bakaleinikoff of Cincinnati. Mr. Bakaleinikoff is the assistant conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra and will play the viola and the viola d'amour at this recital. These instruments are seldom heard in solo recital and should prove of great interest from an educational as well as a musical point of view.

February 5—Joint recital by Mrs. L. L. Dantzer, contralto and Miss Louise Best, pianist, of Lexington.

February 12—Program sponsored by Phi Beta.

February 19—Joint recital by Richard Allison, baritone and David Young, violinist, of Lexington.

February 26—Concert by the university Philharmonic orchestra.

March 5—(Open).

March 12—Liege String quartette of New York city in recital.

March 19—Recital by Harry Farman, violinist, of Chicago.

March 26—Concert by the combined university Glee clubs and orchestra.

April 2—Recital by Stanley Deacon, baritone, of Chicago.
April 9—Palm Sunday program presented by Bertram Ramsey, baritone and Abner W. Kelley, organist.

Kernel Presidential Poll Opens Today

was thought only fair that the name of their presidential candidate be placed on the ballot. Provision also was made to place the name of any other candidate on the ballot who had sufficient constituency on the campus to bring forward a petition signed by 30 students. This petition was to have been presented at The Kernel office before the ballots were released. No petitions were presented.

The vote is to be conducted in a straightforward manner, and each vote must be authentic before it will be counted. Each ballot must be signed by the voter, and presented to the clerk of the ballot box, who is authorized to destroy any ballot which is defaced in any manner that denotes that the ballot has been tampered with. Any challenged ballot will be decided upon by the committee in charge of tabulation of results.

Every student and faculty member of the university is urged to cast his vote for his candidate so that this straw vote may be representative of the sentiment of the school. Indications point to a record vote.

Keys to Award Cup To First Year Man

Scholarship and Participation
In Activities Will Determine Winner

The second meeting of Keys, honorary sophomore fraternity, was held at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday at Tea Cup Inn. Plans were made to present a cup to the freshman who proves most outstanding in scholarship and activities.

An especially high scholastic standing is not required, but must be average or better. The freshman must be a participant in several university activities and a member of a fraternity. His attitude towards the school as a whole will be an important factor in the decision.

The various fraternities will vote on whom they consider the pledge best qualified for this cup from their fraternity. This will be done sometime during the second semester at a time to be announced by Keys. The choice of each fraternity will be submitted to the organization and will be judged by these men and others whose names will be revealed at a later date.

Keys, an organization to promote good will among fraternities, is made up of ten men from different fraternities of the campus. It was founded in 1906 at the University of Kentucky.

ECONOMICS CLUB TO ELECT

A meeting of the home economics club will be held at 9 o'clock Friday morning in room 205, Agriculture building, for the purpose of electing and installing officers for the coming year.

A report of the nominating committee will include the following names for the following officers: president, Alyeene Razor, Whitlock Fennell; vice-president, Caroline Vice, Sarah Van Arsdall; secretary, Dorothea Wilford, Polly Kesheimer; treasurer, Dorothy Prows, Katherine Berry.

tive in the organization. Members of the faculty library committee and their wives were honor guests. The sessions today will begin at 9:30 a.m. At the morning session the association members will hear the reports of the committees on objectives which were appointed last year. The main business of this year's meeting is follow-up work of the meeting in Louisville last year, when committees were appointed to investigate and study various phases of library work, and compose reports for this year's meeting. These committees include: publicity committee, survey and extension; college and university libraries; adult education; special book collection in Kentucky; and others whose reports are to be heard later. At noon today, luncheon meetings will be held by various groups, after which visits will be made to the experiment station and Veterans' hospital libraries. At 4:30, Dr. and Mrs. McVey will entertain with tea at Maxwell place.

Tonight the association will hold its annual Book dinner at the Phoenix hotel ballroom. Miss Margaret King, head librarian of the university library, is chairman for the dinner program, which will include book reviews and poetry.

Tomorrow morning's session will be devoted mainly to the report of the High School Libraries committee. Preceding this, however, Prof. R. D. McIntyre will speak to the convention on "The Sales Personality as an Aid to the Librarian." Mr. Mark Godman of the state Department of Education, will open the High School library session with a talk on "Supervisors and Inspectors of School Libraries." Miss Mildred Semmons, head of the university library science department, will speak on "Library Training As It Affects Library Conditions in the State; Shall it be Widespread or Restricted." "New Books" will be the subject of a talk by Miss Katherine Sullivan, of Bowling Green Teachers' College. Miss Margaret Frazier will be acting chairman of the session. Immediately after this session the election of next year's officers will be held, and the meeting will be officially adjourned at noon. Immediately after adjournment opportunity will be given for high school librarians to visit the university Training School library and Henry Clay High School library.

Bishop H. P. Almon Abbott was the speaker at the engineering assembly at 10 a.m. Wednesday in Memorial hall. His subject was one of interest to everyone. It was titled "Evolution."

His church is at present the Good Shepherd Episcopal church. He spoke on the same subject to a college group Sunday in the regular morning sermon.

Fraternities May Borrow Pictures

The following statement was issued yesterday by Prof. E. W. Rannels of the art department in regard to the lending of pictures to fraternities and sororities on the campus:

"The department has a small collection of fine color reproductions which it plans to lend to student organizations as soon as sufficient applications are received to justify the undertaking. Eventually, the LOST—Black fountain pen, lady's Parker pen—Box 1468. Reward! LOST—Alpha Xi Delta pledge pin. Finder please return to 334 South Limestone.

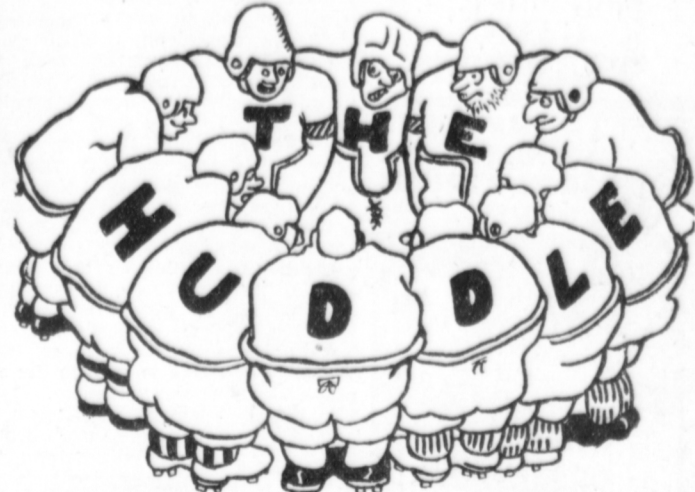

department hopes to build up a loan collection of such dimensions that the pictures can be circulated from libraries, only with the loan periods extended to three months—long enough for one to get acquainted with a picture and possibly to discover why it is a work of art."

Last year fraternities were extended the loan of pictures as a token of appreciation of their upholding the fraternity standards.

EVERYTHING'S under control when you eat Nature's own energy food, 100% whole wheat (Shredded Wheat for short!) Launch two big biscuits into a bowl of milk or cream and hop to it. And get this! ALL the energy-building elements that Nature put into wheat are right here in these golden-brown biscuits.

So call the waiter! Tell him you've decided to double up on energy! Tell him you want to put spring in your step and fire in your eye. Tell him you want Shredded Wheat!

When you see Niagara Falls on the package, you KNOW you have Shredded Wheat.

They are not present in Luckies
... the mildest cigarette
you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, the Lord build him a house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.
Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?
